MANUFACTURER'S MESSAGE

Congratulations! You have just purchased this product of an Undergraduate Education from the University of Oregon.

This manual can provide clear instruction on how to operate this product. Additionally, the contents of this manual may provide guidance in fixing your education if broken, as well as answer any surface level questions that you may have about this product.

WARNING:

If you find that your education is about to combust, overheat, openly swear at a funeral, wear white after labor day, drink before a final, and/or turn off sporadically, please notify the Dean of Students' office immediately. They will get back to you within 2-20 weeks with an email explaining that the University of Oregon is not responsible for your damaged product.

Purchase of this product does not guarantee a Bachelor's degree. Result of a Bachelor's degree from using this product does not guarantee a job after graduation.

DISCLAIMER:

Side effects of using this product include:

- yelling "SC00000 DUCKS" at campus tour groups
- excess drinking on weekdays
- wearing the same clothes for 72 hours
- only calling your mom for the Hulu password
- a toxic relationship with your freshman year roommate
- bragging how you took a photo with (sorry, *of) Marcus Mariota
- "falling" into the Jaqua pond at 1 AM
- having to explain to your hometown friends why Matt Kearney is a big deal

Thank you for your purchase, and we hope you enjoy this product!

SCHILL

Please read if:

Your product is experiencing receiving uncomfortably formal emails from a man you have never met.

You are questioning the University of Oregon's leadership

There was a "special guest speaker" in your 100-level political science class, but you aren't sure who this man is.

If this is occurring, please do not be alarmed. The cause of these concerns is President Michael Schill. Schill has been the president of the University of Oregon since 2015, and since this time, a total of 6 students have seen him on campus. As also a professor for the UO Law School, Schill holds a primary position at the University. His backstory is not common knowledge to the students on campus, but no student has ever thought to ask. Schill is most known for his lengthy presidential statements that are sent to every UO student's email. The statement is usually concerning a very serious matter and attempts to explain the university's stance on that matter. You may finish the statement confused and questioning if the university's stance is explicitly stated. It is advised that you reread the statement a couple more times, but generally a stance will not be given in certainty.

If you need to contact President Schill at any time, it is recommended that you visit his office. His office can be found at Johnson Hall, one of the most historic buildings on campus where past university presidents have held the tradition of having their office stationed in. However, once at Johnson Hall, you will be directed to the Ford Alumni Center where Schill has "temporarily" moved his office due to the distracting sound of construction and poor air-conditioning.

KNIGHT LIBRARY

Please read if:

You need a quiet place to Snapchat photos of you studying

You don't know how to read

The Knight Library is located directly across the Lillis lawn, near Prince Lucien Campbell Hall. Knight Library is the central studying and academic resource center on campus, and it has often been referred to as the Dementor of Buildings. Inside the lovely, historic Knight Library is the stuffy décor of a library that has not been renovated since the time it was built. Resources that can be found in this building are printers, scanners, staplers, and tutors. If you are looking for information on any subject, you can find access to a limited number of computer desktops through the maze of thousands of books that have not been touched in twenty years. CAUTION: you may encounter a man watching pornography on one of the desktop computers. If this occurs, please alert the resource desk so that they may have an uncomfortable conversation with him.

ALLEN HALL

Please read if:

Graphic design is your life

You say you read the New York Times

Eric W. Allen Hall is home to the School of Journalism and Communications. Inside you will find Super J majors on the first floor, Advertising majors on the third floor, and a random mix of undeclared and Public Relations majors on the second floor. You may come across students talking about creativity as a noun, verb, and/or adjective or students loudly using the term "passion project" to get attention from other students.

UNIVERSITY HEALTH CENTER

Please read if:

You believe you have an STI

You aren't sure if it's an STI or just the common cold

Are you sure it's not an STI?

The University Health Center is the hub of medical resources located near the freshman dorms. These resources include counselors, dentists, and nurses that are equipped to assist you with any STI's— I mean, any health concerns that you may have. Their misdiagnoses have led to a huge increase in visits to the Urgent Care Center off of campus.

OFFICE HOURS

Please read if:

It is Week 10, and you want to get your 64% up to a 90%.

You need a letter of recommendation

Each professor and GE on campus is required to hold regularly scheduled office hours to assist students with class subject material. The average student attends office hours -2 times throughout their student career. If you choose to attend office hours, it is recommended that you bring your own Kleenex in preparation for an accidental breakdown.

iCLICKER

Please read if:

You don't know how to use an iClicker

You love product diagrams

ARROWS; use these buttons to scroll the alphabet and numbers. Common answers include 420, 69, 42069,

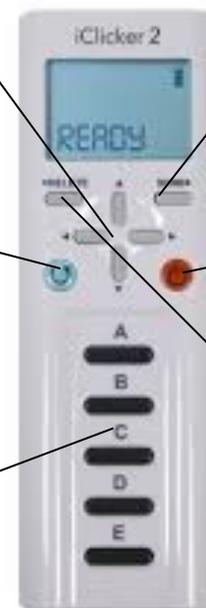

SEND Button; press this to send your answer to the professor's live answer board, where you will see that you were 1 of 2 people to get the answer wrong.

REDO Button: you messed up on a question and you don't know what else to do except frantically press this button until your finger breaks.

ON/OFF Button

A-E Buttons; use these if you are boring or want a good grade.

DELETE Button: oh wait, maybe THIS is the button that lets you redo your answer...

FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS

Q: Despite its progressive stance on inclusion, how does the UO respond to its lack of diversity?

A: Great question.

Q: How much did the custom-built “O” desk in the EMU cost?

A: About forty thousa– um, I mean, one cannot put a price on the tools needed for students to succeed. The EMU fosters a sense of community and academia, and is home to the offices of the campus’s organizations and clubs; these organizations include ASUO, Fraternity and Sorority Life, the outdoor club, and (ugh, it’s on the tip of my tongue– ah yes!) the women’s place you can go to for free printing. Because of this, the EMU is equipped with all of the supplies needed for students to succeed: a state-of-the-art computer lab, a REALLY big chair, lots of stairs, not enough study tables, more stairs, fire pits outside of the Fishbowl even though it rains 90% of the time, and (of course) the “O” desk.

Q: Where can I purchase a parking permit for campus parking lots?

A: Permits can be purchased at the University of Oregon Department of Transportation. Upon purchasing your permit, you will be given a map that does not clearly define where you are allowed to park your car. If you have any questions, please ask the parking meter officer who issued you a ticket if they can point you in the direction of lot you are permitted to park in.

Q: I asked the parking meter officer where I should park, and they told me to ask you?

A: That is excellent advice.

FAQ CONTINUED

Q: Where can students purchase textbooks?

A: Students can purchase textbooks from the campus Duck Store. If interested in purchasing textbooks for up to 75% cheaper, students can also purchase e-textbooks off of a sketchy text site. If interested in taking the risk of not purchasing any textbooks because the syllabus states that only two chapters are assigned from that book, it is recommended that students still purchase the textbook so that the Duck Store can receive your $200 payment for one book.

Q: I went to sell back the $200 textbook in perfect condition, and I only received $4 for it.

A: That wasn’t a question.
